

Should School Uniforms be Compulsory?

Many people feel school uniforms should be compulsory because, there is no pressure to wear "cool" clothes, if you're on a trip you can be found easily, its not expensive and you don't have to waste money. On the other hand people think school uniforms should not be compulsory because, you can express yourself, children's own clothing is more comfortable and it's so expensive!

Here are some reasons for, making school uniforms compulsory:

- *No peer pressure
- *Save's money
- *Not expensive
- *Not much laundry
- *Neat and tidy

For: You have no peer pressure because if you wear uniforms everyone will look the same but if school uniforms weren't compulsory then people will start to look at you and if you come to school with the same clothes you wore yesterday the they will start to tease you about how you don't have a shower and you stink!

Here are some reasons against, making school uniforms compulsory:

- *Too expensive
- *You can't express yourself
- *Stupid-looking
- *Uncomfortable
- *Uniforms are too strict

Against: People want to express themselves and thats okay. People are arguing about not wanting to wear school uniforms. They want to express themselves their own way. Expressing themselves means, not wearing school uniforms, wearing their own clothes, not having strict rules, not having a teacher telling you off for not having the correct uniform and there are consequences!

In conclusion I believe children should wear school uniforms because we've been wearing uniforms all our lives its not expensive, not wasting money and no peer pressure and why should we change, there was no problem back then, then why should there be a problem now. Therefore school uniforms should be compulsory. End of Story!
